Policymaking

Since the core skill of an Economics graduate is her/his ability to understand the economy as a whole, many students choose to study Economics at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels in order to become successful researchers and policymakers. One may try to be a state or country's finance minister in future, or as a central banker, or in other technical policy making roles. Aside from being popularly elected, routes to active policy making include academia in conjunction with active policy consultations, or becoming a technocrat (or technical bureaucrat).

Development Sector Organisations or Think Tanks

This is a sector that is closely connected to variety of alter, but often in the form of its alter-ego. Both development sector organisations and think tanks often conduct research on incumbent and other policy options, in fields like poverty, rural/urban development, education, healthcare, agriculture, international trade and economic policy, in order to present civil society and governments with credible policy alternatives. Again, this is a research-driven field, and expertise in statistical and econometric tools, which Economics graduates tend to have, provides an edge.

Economist in a Corporate Sector Firm

Many corporate sector firms hire economists to conduct research on the macro business environment that they operate in, and help them better navigate business cycles and policy changes. Your work will involve conducting thorough research using statistical and econometric tools, and make recommendations based on your findings. If you choose this career, you may find yourself working for a bank, a large e-commerce firm, or even a technology major such as Google.

Allied Areas

Not all Economics graduates go on to carve careers in the field of core Economics. Many move to allied areas like management and finance, and are very successful there on account of the strong analytical base provided by a training in Economics.

Some other outcomes are-

one may specialise in corporate finance, thereby revenue streams, investment projects and overall financial management, and aim to become Chief Financial Officer someday.

Actuarial Science

Actuarial science is a fast-emerging career option among Economics graduates. Actuaries are essentially experts at analysing risk and uncertainty, and also pricing them and provisioning for them. They have strong domain knowledge of mathematics, statistics and finance, in addition to economics, and are prominently employed in the insurance industry, and by pension funds, investment firms and actuarial consulting firms.

Bachelors of Commerce

Bachelors of Commerce is a crucial degree for commerce students. However, it isn't enough in today's competitive world, so B. Com graduates seeking high-paying jobs need to pursue some additional courses after graduation.

There are many career options available after completing the B. Com degree, but very graduates are aware of the various routes they can pursue to build a successful career.

1. Master of Business Administration (MBA) in Finance: There are many options available to a student going for MBA in Finance. However, one needs to join the topmost B-schools in the country, and only then success will follow to the doorsteps. On the other hand, MBA from an ordinary institute doesn't add much value.
2. Masters of Commerce (M.Com): Many B.Com graduates straightaway take up M.Com as a natural follow-up degree. It can be pursued from any recognized institute, and the program primarily focuses on accounting, business, statistics, economics, finance, taxation, etc. However, many students pursue M.Com and some other professional courses (such as CA) because M.Com has little or no value.
3. Chartered Accountant (CA): It is one of the most common career pathways followed by commerce students. The Institute of Chartered Accountants (ICAI) is the body responsible for conducting the CA exams, which are divided into three parts viz. CPT, IPCC, and Final CA. After clearing one of the two groups of IPCC, a candidate needs to register for article ship with an experienced CA for a period of at least 2.5 years. Only after successfully completing articles and clearing IPCC, a candidate can write the Final CA exam, which also has two groups.

4. Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA): CFA is considered one of the highest recognitions in the investment industry. It is a globally recognized qualification divided into three levels of exams administered by the CFA Institute, USA. It can be either pursued after completing B.Com or during the final year of graduation. The CFA charter holders are revered not only within the country but are also sought after all over the world.
5. Certified Management Accountant (CMA): It is one of the top global certifications, and it is offered by the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA), USA. The Institute of Certified Management Accountants (ICMA) is responsible for reviewing the course content regularly. One needs to clear two examinations to become a qualified CMA, a certification that demonstrates professional expertise in financial planning, analysis, decision support, control, and professional ethics.
6. Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA): ACCA is the world's leading and fastest-growing network of international accountants with 162k members and 428k students across 173 countries. To become a qualified ACCA, one needs to clear 14 papers. After successfully completing ACCA, a candidate can have career options in accounting, banking, consulting, and management. In addition, the ACCA program gives knowledge about UK GAAP and IFRS.
7. Financial Risk Manager (FRM): FRM is a globally recognized certification for finance and banking professionals. The FRM exam is divided into two parts, and the exams are conducted by the Global Association of Risk Professionals (GARP), USA. A qualified FRM is able to access career options in the field of risk management, trading, modelling , etc.
8. Certified Public Accounting (CPA): CPA is another globally recognized certification for candidates interested in the field of accountancy. CPA consists of four exams that are conducted by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), which is the largest accounting body in the world. A qualified CPA possesses knowledge of the US GAAP, IFRS, GAAS, US federal tax, and business laws. Typically, students pursue CPA after completing CA, M.Com, or even MBA in finance to give their career a strong boost.

9. Business Accounting and Taxation (BAT): BAT is a well-researched course that has been designed to provide a practical understanding of accounting, reporting, taxation, and compliance. These skills can be instrumental in breaking into the Big 4 accounting firms, KPO, and other hardcore accounting profiles.

B. A. English (Honours)

English Honours is an undergraduate course of 3 years. This course aims to develop awareness about humanity and society and contributes by creating novels, dramas, poetry, prose, etc.

Students are required to critically think and analyse what they read, they are supposed to get to a conclusion on their own that may differ from that of others, but they must delve into each sentence so deep that their unique perception reflects on their papers. Many corporate sectors prefer English Honours students for several posts like HR, director, editor, content writer, relationship manager, marketing professional, etc. There are Govt. and non-Govt. schools and colleges where only English Honours students are recruited for the role of English faculty. One can pursue further studies like a Master's degree in English Literature, Ph.D., Master's degree in Journalism and Mass Communications, undertake various short-term courses like content writing, digital marketing, etc.

Best Career Options after English Honours:

1. Content Writing:

It is one of the most trendy and best career options after English Honours. For content writing, the basic requirement is to have a natural flair and proficiency in the English Language. A literature degree would help you open up your vision, thinking capability, and interpretation power that is beneficial for better-analysing things. Companies or organizations usually prefer candidates with an English Honours degree over other degree holders for a content writing job as their basic criteria are competence over the English language.

2. Blogging:

It is content writing for website. Literature of all ages depicts how people and society changed and dealt with changes, which develops a sense of awareness. It gives a concept about different cultures, beliefs, lifestyles, etc.

3. Digital Marketing/ Social Media Marketing:

Digital marketing is a flourishing industry in today's world. Since the world is being digitized day by day, marketing companies and business organizations seek to reach their customers through various digital mediums. Now, as the competition is very high in this field, you have to be creative to produce catchy headlines, fancy and effective product descriptions, and other essentials of your marketing product to attract customers.

4. Creative Writer & Editor:

Creative writing is one of the best-suited career options after English Honours, and so is an editor's job. In the 3 years of the English Honours course, one goes through the writings of world-famous writers, poets, and novelists. Most of the literary pieces are usually imbued with rhetorical words and sentences that help in framing your creative writing ability.
